The Arithmetical Problem. Mr. Eptron :- I will not say that I think it im possible to multiply £19 19s. 114d. by itself by duodecimals or cross-multiplication, but I do think it a very simple process to find the product by the decimal method; thus, £19 19s. 113d. becomes maining decimal fraction of a farthing .39976, &c. It will be seen that this result differs slightly from that found by C., as published in the Gazette of the 19th, and I believe I have discovered a mistake in his calculation. He says, "we have the (£20 1-960)2 = £400 40-960x1-921600£, which reduced gives 368601601-921600 of £, or £399 883200-921600," &c., &c. Now if C. will look over his work. I think he will find that, in his reduction of Art. 20. the product, he has treated it as though it were £400 1-921600-40-960, instead of £400-40-960x1-921600, and has thus made it a fraction larger than it should be.

THE PACIFIC

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 13.

FROM KAILUA, we have letters to the 7th inst. His Majesty's health continues much the same as when last reported; no decision had been made as to the return of the Royal party to the capital, but it is quite possible that to-merrow's steamer may bring them. November 28th was observed by a native feast, at which His Majesty and suite were present. the Hon. Mrs. Cleghorn, Col. the Hon. W. P. Leleioboku, Col. C. H. Judd and Dr. Trousseau, together with a large party, made a trip to Mount

Hualalai and visited the celebrated ancient Tem-Among the Books sold at auction the other evening, we noticed quite a number that it struck us were peculiarly suitable for preservation in the library of the Hawaiian Government. Such were for instance the cruise of the Blonde in 1824, and Dibble's History, not to mention old books of voyages to these seas, which are very rare and out of print. Anything and everything pertaining to the past history of these islands or of the Hawaiian people, increases in interest as the people themselves pass away, and as old resilents, who remembered them fifty or more years ago, drop from among us in the lapse of time. The books of which we speak, the valuable records and mementoes of the past, cannot be duplicated, and we regretted to see that no one on behalf of the government made an effort to secure them for the national archives. The cost would have been trifling, for we much doubt if any one would care to compete were it made known that government desired the books for such a commendable purpose. But the opportunity-like others which have occurred before to preserve some rare relies of the past-was suffered to slip, either through mistaken parsimony or a lack of appreciation. And yet the Legislature of 1872 passed an "Act to establish a Museum of Archæology, Literature," &c., &c., a part of the preamble to which Act reads as follows: "Whereas, every succeeding year is rendering it more difficult to gather from the archives of the past the mementoes and relics of our early existence as a nation, as well as of the pre-historic age of these islands, therefore, Be it enacted," &c.

THE PROPOSED AMENDMENTS to the Constitution which will come up for discussion and final action at the ensuing session of the Legislative Assembly, were commented upon by us at the time when they were before the extra session of January last, and we have since found no reason to alter the views then expressed. The particular one out of the eleven proposed amendments t which we had and still have any serious objection, is that of Article 42, which detaches the Attorney General from the King's Cabinet.

We have so far been unable to find any good reason or any popular demand for the proposed change. It certainly cannot be contended that the Attorney General has but little connection with the executive business of the government. In the routine of their offices, each head of department must frequently come in contact with questions of statute and general law, which sometimes assume proportions of grave importance and of delicate bearing. The Ministers, under such circumstances, must refer to some law officer, and it should be to some one upon whom officially devolves the labor and responsibility, one who is himself a member of the Cabinet which he advises. If the Attorney General is not a member of the Cabinet, he must bowever be consulted just as freely, as often, and as confidentially as though he were. The argument that because this officer is occasionally called away from the capital on the business of Courts, therefore his presence in the Cabinet can be dispensed with altogether, is certainly a very strange and illogical one. The Attorney General is required by law to attend the terms of Court held on the other islands, either personally or by deputy. These terms are six in number, and it has quite often happened, during the incumbency of both the late and the present Attorney General, that the duties of Crown prosecutor at those terms have been discharged by a deputy, very correctly and efficiently.

It cannot be urged that to drop the Attorney General from the list of Crown Ministers would be any saving to the Treasury, for in that event a Public Prosecutor and Law Adviser would have to be provided for. If economy is desired, we should say, drop the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the duties of whose office, as experience has proved, can be quite easily and properly performed by the Minister of Finance, always conferring on matters of extra importance with his colleagues of the Interior and Law departments.

In the Legislature, the suggestions and labors of the Attorney General would seem to be really necessary, whether he sit in the Upper or Lower branch. Much hasty and incomplete legislation and much subsequent labor and expense will be avoided by the courts and the public, by the personal attendance and assistance of the law officer of the government in the forum where the laws

In regard to another of the proposed amendments-that of Article 20, intended to exclude all judges from a seat in the House of Representatives-it has been contended, and with some show of reason, that it is unnecessary, and therefore undesirable. Every change in the Constitution should have some positive recommendation, and unless such appears there would seem to be no profit in needless tinkering. The provisions of Section 818 of the Civil Code, taken in connection with Article 20 of the Constitution, as it now stands, would seem to meet the requirements

"No person holding a seat on the Bench of the Supreme Court, or any police or district court, shall be eligible to a seat in the House of Representatives

"The Supreme Power of the Kingdom in its exercise, is vested in the Executive, Legislative and Judicial; these shall always be preserved distinct, and no judge of a court of record shall ever be a member of the Legislative Assembly." [Constitution,

But notwithstanding the express interdict of the Civil Code above quoted, the Assembly of 1872 absolutely stultified itself by admitting to seats in its body as Representatives persons who at the same time were holding the offices of Pohee or District Judge. It may be said that such a positive contempt of statute law could only occur under a political regime such as then existed; it will be prudent however to guard against the possibility of its recurrence in the future, and the wording of the amendment in question is certainly liable to objection.

FROM AUSTRALIA .- The schooner Lelitia arrived on Thursday, from Newcastle, N. S. W., with a cargo of coals to H. Hackfeld & Co. We have received Melbourne papers to October 16th, in which however we find but little of importance. Messrs. Mount and Morris, who were convicted of man- 66 slaughter in the celebrated Carl case of kidnapping South Sea Islanders, bad been released from prison on a writ of habeas corpus, through some informality in the proceedings, and had, it was supposed improved the opportunity to leave the country. A good deal of useless indignation was expressed at their escape.

THE RECENT OCCURRENCE of several sudden deaths among the natives, which were plainly and undoubtedly caused by the excessive use of spirits, A FEWIALF BARRELS is beginning to create alarm among the people, and leads them to inquire why it is that the law which prohibits the selling or furnishing of in-FOR MMILY USE. toxicating drinks to Hawaiians is so notoriously and extensively disregarded. It is well known that a large majority of the native people would oppose any repeal or abatement whatever of the law in question, which they justly consider should be a protection and safeguard against the evils of intemperance. The attempt has been more than once made of late years to relax the On the 5th instant, Her Majesty Queen Emma, law in this respect, but it has invariably been voted down by the Representatives of the people. From the native newspaper Hawaii Ponoi, of this week, we translate the following editorial remarks on this subject : "In these days we quite frequently hear of sudden deaths of Hawaiians, the immediate cause of which is known to be drunkenness. We also see, every day, on every hand, that the law which forbids the selling or furnishing of strong drink to natives is utterly disregarded. Everybody knows that natives can get liquor just as easily as do foreigners, if they have the money to pay for it. This is a sad state of things. Our people are disappearing fast enough from natural causes, but this free use of strong drink is hastening their departure. Is there no possibility of quenching this fire that is thus consuming our people?

"It is a common saying among those who study the working of laws, that if any one law is not approved by the majority of the people, then it will not be enforced. Let us ask, does not the majority P.S.-Don't sample too much! of the nation think that the law forbidding the selling or furnishing spirits to natives is a good and desirable law? We do not doubt that if put to vote, the answer will be decidedly in favor of the law as it stands. Why then is it not enforced? Cannot the police, who are paid to enforce the laws, do their duty as to this one? The Attorney General and the Marshal are the heads of the Police Department; do they say that they are unable to execute this law? If so, then let them make known the reasons, and suggest some new enactment that can be enforced. Better have the present law repealed altogether than have it constantly treated with contempt.

"But we have a word of complaint to make in this connection with regard to native juries. Some months since there was a clear case of selling and furnishing liquor to natives in Koolau on this island. The case went through the District Court and the Court of Judge Kapena, and the party was convicted. As we have said, the case was very clear, without any reasonable doubt about the guilt of the party accused. But some smart lawyer advised him to appeal and take a jury trial, and an intelligent jury of natives acquitted him. They perhaps had a half-lawyer among them, who persuaded them that black was white. We must confess that such juries are enough to discourage a police officer who desires to do his duty under the law. We should not feel proud of having been one of that jury !

"It is the truth, that nearly all of the liquor shops in Honolulu sell to natives just as freely as to foreigners. Indeed, there are so many of these shops, and a good many foreigners in these days having become abstainers, it is reported that the liquor sellers say themselves, that they could not get a living if they did not sell to natives. So then, it appears that we natives are supporting the gin manufacturer in Holland, the merchant here who imports, and the sellers who retail the gin. What a shame, that our people should spend their limited means for this wretched, soul and body destroying

"If we were a preacher of the Gospel, one who possessed influence with the people, we should not fail to raise our voice on this subject and try to rouse the people to action. Let the law be enforced. In the words of the motto under the picture of Judge Lee in the Court House- Fiat justitia rust colum! -Let justice be done, though the heavens fall."

It may indeed be very pertinently asked, Is not public sentiment in favor of the enforcement of this just and necessary law? Without doubt, every good citizen, every Christian and rightminded man in the community, will hold up both hands on the side of the law. If this public opinion can be concentrated and its expression be clearly and strongly enunciated, it will be strange if it shall not prevail. An ample field is here presented for the labors of true philanthropists.

" Intemperance and its Suppression" was the subject of a paper read before the Evangelical Alliance, which recently met in New York. Our limited space precludes our making more than brief extracts, which strike us as pertinent. The italies are ours.

"It is the hearse voice of materialism that shouts for the rights of property, and demands for them the precedence before all other rights. It is the calm voice of Christianity which affirms the higher sacredness of the right to rear children in virtue and purity, and to dwell in peaceful homes, and to have those homes protected against the erection among them of establishments which regularly and systematically emit influences more baleful than the deadliest pestilence." *

"Neither forgetting nor despising the press and the secular platform, and current literature, we believe that preeminently from the Christian pulpit must be sounded forth those mighty truths which work in the bosom of society, and move at length the whole body along pathways of beneficent reform. Nor should it offend these our fellow-laborers in this reform who agree with us in our views of Christian ethics, but dissent from our views of evangelical doctrine, if we solemnly avow our belief, that this, which they reject, is the very life and soul of that which with us they accept. Here is the hiding of its power-'the power of God unto salvation.' In order thus to serve society, the Church must sanctify

MR. EDITOR -SEVERAL OF THE RE-TAIL Store keepers of Honolulu desire through this medium to lay before the public what they consider as a GRIEVANCE, connected with their business. The former Minister of the Interior made it a rule of his office not to grant a license to keep a Shipping Office for Seamen to a party who was in any way nterested in a store. That is not the case now, and the result is that sailors are in a manner forced to deal with the Shipping Masters for their out-fits, at stores set up FOR THE SEASON ONLY, and also that if sailors owe any other store they do not pay such debts, their advance going through the hands of the Shipping Master, who can advise them that they are not obliged to pay any debts but such as they have been induced to ontract with him. This is not fair, either for us or the seaman In allowing this state of things, government is not doing the square thing with us who are regular traders and keep our stocks throughout the year, in the dull season, while these mushroom Shipping Masters' slop-shops are not to be seen. If It is right that Shipping Masters shall also keep out-fitting stores for seamen, then put the license of Shipping Masters up at auction, so that all may have an equal chance.
